2. In view of the progress relaxation of provisions of military censorship regulations, it is vital that commanders bring to the immediate attention of all their units and agencies, the basic regulation which prohibits, and will continue to prohibit, divulging of classified information to persons other than those official duties require such information. This prohibition applies equally to divulging classified information to members of the press." BY COMMAND OF GENERAL [illegible]

SUGGESTION BOX:

SUGGESTION: "Due to the fact that most men on this base are draftees and are only waiting to get out, why don't they forget this drill business. I've had enough and besides it doesn't help my kind of work one bit. How about pleasing us instead of browning us off all the time.

I suggest we get those new cooks on the drill too. They can't boil water without it tasting flat."

ANSWER: SB wishes to inform you that even if you were drafted you are not out of the Army yet and you are not the one to decide whether drilling helps your work or not. However, due to this suggestion, drill has been cut to two days a week (see Daily Bulletin 24 Sep 45).

SB disagrees with you and thinks the new cooks are doing an excellent job. The cooks informed SB that they will be pleased to turn the job over to you so they can go home.
